[ 4 ] At the End

Nineteen years ago , from 2004 to 2005 , I lived in Kuala Lumpur , the capital of Malaysia. There were many rare things that Japan does not have , and one of them was a roundabout.

There were some intersections with traffic lights , but most were roundabouts. I had heard that in Malaysia , due to the unstable power supply , roundabouts are used instead of intersections with traffic lights that require power. It was also said that the history of British rule had an impact. The escalator in the shopping mall often stopped due to a power outage while shopping. At that time , I thought "Malaysia is still developing , so it's just the beginning."

However , I heard that roundabouts are attracting attention as a way to deal with power outages during earthquakes. At that time , the experience of the roundabout in Malaysia was revived and I felt nostalgic. Then , I decided to visit the three roundabouts that have been installed in Gifu Prefecture so far.

My first impression after visiting the roundabouts was that they were quiet everywhere. I remember when I first tried to enter a roundabout in Malaysia , I was afraid to enter because the roundabout was full of cars. Roundabouts in Malaysia were always full of cars. However , all three roundabouts in Gifu Prefecture that I visited this time were almost empty.
